The SRB expects the Single Resolution Fund (SRF) to grow to just short of EUR 33 billion in 2019. This amount is invested to ensure value protection and high liquidity. The SRB is keen to see progress made on the backstop to the fund to further provide confidence to the market through increased financial capacity. In this context it always needs to be kept in mind that the provision of the backstop is not a second resolution decision, but a last resort measure for the SRB in case a resolution decision can only be implemented with the use of the SRF and backstop. With regard to the regulatory agenda, it is important to move forward with the BRRD-II package. The finalisation will have a direct impact on day-to-day resolution planning and legislative changes will need to be taken into account in future iterations of resolution plans. The SRB is also confident and hopeful that progress can be made on the important third pillar of a harmonised deposit guarantee scheme (EDIS) in order to complete the Banking Union (BU). The harmonisation of insolvency regimes and their improvement from a resolution perspective remains essential to increase effectiveness of the resolution regime as well. Currently, the SRM framework is faced with 19 or more different insolvency procedures in the BU. We will also need to continue our work on the topic of liquidity in resolution. While private options will be sought first, pragmatic solutions to ensure an orderly and full transition to market funding must be found. This also includes work on a possible framework for liquidity in resolution, together with national central banks and the European Central Bank (ECB). Brexit is going to be another challenge facing many sectors in the coming year, and it will no doubt make an impact on our core business. On the current charts, the United Kingdom (UK) is set to become a third country. This will require all EU banks to put in place adequate mechanisms to ensure that future issuances under UK law are still MREL eligible. Existing issuances should meet eligibility, if they contain relevant contractual clauses, as is the case for any other third country issuance. The SRB could address potential shortfalls by granting bank-specific transition periods, in line with previous practices. Incoming banks need to ensure that their EU operations are sufficiently equipped to be resolvable in case of crisis. Close cooperation with the ECB, National Competent Authorities (NCAs), NRAs, our international counterparts and last but not least, banks, will need to remain strong to deal with the event. The relevant internal resolution teams (IRTs) will be strengthened accordingly to ensure preparedness for incoming Brexit banks.
