Star Trek - Blueprint

Update: June 27, 2020 ---After the fantastic response to the rescanned blueprints of the U.S.S. Saladin that were posted last week, I've decided to go back to where it all began and rescan the blueprints of the one and original Star Trek Blueprints by Franz Joseph. These classic prints have been scanned at 400dpi and then carefully edited to remove artifacting, creases, and other abnormalities ...

The print-out version of the Star Fleet Technical Manual, as used by the Star Fleet Academy, is a collection of only those Technical Orders necessary to the indoctrination of new cadets until such time as they have become experienced in the use of the data read-out stations of Mastercom/SFHQ. Further the Terran version contains even fewer Technical Orders because of the prohibition of the . . .

Back in 1995, during the first season of Voyager, a make-shift Technical Manual for Voyager's inaugural season was created by veteran Star Trek contributors Rick Sternbach and Michael Okuda. The Technical Manual, which followed along the lines of the Star Trek: The Next Generation Technical Manual, was never published, and apparently never will be.

I've been playing for a while, maybe 6 months and I still haven't completed that mission. I am not buying the USS Franklin blueprints. Especially after the criticism I heard about it. But they did have it in the last Borg event (for sale). You will have to wait for the next event that has it and there is no telling what event may have it. Some events do have the blueprints some don't.

Grinding for the Saladin is a bit of a catch-22. For most players, you won't be able to grind out the Blueprints for a Saladin until you're actually using a Saladin to grind out Blueprints. If you've got a Centurion or a Bortas, however, you find that hostile Federation ships in level 32+ systems will give you Saladin blueprints. I've ...
