"The Arrival" by Shaun Tan fits none of these established models. It has no written text, but none are needed as the drawings are wonderful in depicting the story, and effective in evoking the emotions to be "drawn" in. It is the story of a man who is forced to leave his bleak homeland to seek opportunities in a new world.

Shaun Tan's graphic novel The Arrival tells the story of the refugee experience, depicting its sense of deprivation, danger, loneliness, discovery, and wonder. Rooted in the picture-story tradition that predates modern comics, the book's wordless language mirrors the protagonist's inability to communicate though words in his new environment; the surreal images provide the story with universal relevance.

Shaun Tan's The Arrival is, in essence, the framework for nearly every immigration story, from the melancholy departure, to the job search, to the bringing of the rest of the family to the new world. In the protagonist's experiences in the foreign land he migrates to, a surprisingly essential element of the journey is the companionship by the "pet" he adopts upon moving into an apartment.
